Albanian spies have revealed the details of Albanian spying activities in Yugoslavia during their trials in Skopje.

The accused Amet Vali was sentenced to 20 years in prison by the new Albanian government on charges of war crimes, and of being a Fascist and a Nazi. While confined, he was visited by an Albanian major who told him that he would be set free because he was not guilty of any crime, and that his imprisonment was the fault of the traitor, Koce Xoxe, who imprisoned innocent people. The prisoner was set free the following day, and the major took him to Korce. There he was obliged to give his oath that he would work actively for the security of Albania. Together with him, 60 former Fascists and Nazis, likewise sentenced to prison for many years, also gave a similar oath. All these new spies and agents were sent to the Yugoslav-Albanian border, accompanied by members of the Albanian State Security, who provided them with all the necessary instructions and propaganda material.

The accused Duka Cazim was an enthusiastic partisan of the former Albanian king and escaped from Albania with him. Later he returned illegally. In 1949 he was sent to Korce, where officers of the State Security enrolled him in the spy service and later sent him across the border to Yugoslavia.

The accused Saban Horvati was caught smuggling at the Albanian part of the border. As he was afraid of severe punishment, he allowed himself to be talked into becoming a spy. His duty was to report all data at the spy headquarters in Peshkopi.

Naum Cocevski, who fled from Yugoslavia to Albania, stated that he was slated for the Albanian espionage service immediately upon his arrival. He received instruction for a long period of time and visited many spy and terrorist headquarters and became acquainted with most of the leaders. He also named several Yugoslav traitors from Macedonia, the Metohija, and Montenegro who are active at these spy headquarters.

Most of these spies were instructed to report on the border patrols and to spread propaganda to the effect that parts of Macedonia, the Metohija, and Montenegro would soon be annexed to Albania.
